Re: Payment for additional services provided during a well visit appointment

At times, during your wellness visit with your physician, abnormal concerns arise; and there are times when you electively bring concerns to the appointment to discuss with your physician. Your physician will happily address these concerns during this visit. The alternative to addressing these concerns would be to schedule a future appointment where they could be addressed solely.

Be advised that when we combine two visits (illness and wellness) into one appointment, your physician has spent additional time with you, provided additional medical decision making, possibly referred you to a specialists, and/or provided a treatment plan. Physicians have always billed for these additional services.

Because of recent changes brought about by the Healthcare Reform Act, any balance resulting from the additional charges billed may be your responsibility.

We understand that healthcare insurance and compensation can be confusing and hope that this letter resolves your questions about charges for services provided today. If you have additional questions, please contact our billing office.

Sincerely
